SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

"You can't get something for nothing"; "You have to pay for what you get"; "You can't have your cake and eat it too." "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap".

These expressions are made up of different words used to express the same thought. Because of unemployment and the assistance given by the many relief agencies, we have many people in America today who have assumed the attitude that the world owes them a living. They do not reason that they in turn owe something to the world. We hope that you boys and girls who are leaving high school have been imbued, at home and at school, with the idea that one must work and achieve in order to be happy. Again may I impress on your mind, "What we sow that we shall reap".

*"Pep, wisdom, joy, everything worthwhile,

MARTHA REID BAKER

Home Economics Club (1, 2); Cheerio; Perrylips Club (5); Voted Class Baby.

"A winning way stands high today."

I am afraid that the expression "auburn hair is the sign of high temper" could not be applied to Martha because she is always ready to smile and win her way into your soul. She will be held in the memory of the Senior Class as a friend to all.

CATHERINE OPHELIA BAYNES

Latin Club (1, 2); Home Economics Club (1, 2); Cheerio; Dramatic Club (4, 5); Perrylips Club (5); Typist for RENOCAHI; Voted Most Beautiful.

*"Maiden fair, sweet and true,

REIDSVILLE: Glee Club (4, 5); Perrylips Club (5); Voted Most Dignified.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1938

As we come to the close of twelve years of work and fun together, let us all take a little time to look into the past and see how we have enjoyed being together during our work and play. We came into this world, which was recovering from a great war and wearied by many problems, around 1919 or 1920.

We first entered school together in September of 1926, when tightly clutching our mothers' hands, we were eager to explore the fields of knowledge which would open to us a bigger and brighter world.

Our first days were interesting because Miss Showalter and Miss Redwine found a new story for us each day. Their favorites were "Little Red Riding Hood" and "The Three Bears," but this soon became a thing of the past and we settled down to work. The next year Miss Sheffield taught us the multiplication tables, and of all the numbers two and five were our favorites. The most outstanding thing in our memory of the third grade was the way Lillie Stiers played with Miss Balsley's hair all the time. Then came Miss Trollinger in the fourth grade and we all really settled down to work. As we had just reached the talkative age when Miss Wooten received us, she moved us continually to keep us from talking. The thrill of our lives and probably the most outstanding memory of our school career came in the sixth grade when Miss Cobb took us to Raleigh on a tour of our state capital. We were joined this year by Pam Oliver. The seventh grade classes caused many of us to scratch our heads and look bewildered. Our first exams left us in a daze, but Miss Blackwell, Miss Hollowell, and Miss Atkinson lent helping hands and we passed to High School.

In September 1933 we entered High School astonished at the new way of changing classes and having different teachers for every class. Although our Freshman year was a struggle, we all passed on into the ninth grade.

As Sophomores we began to regain self-possession and confidence, and to take part in the activities and athletics of the school. Some of us went out for basketball and football while others took part in various other activities of the school. As time passed on, our second year of High School passed and we eagerly looked forward to the third.

Vacation ended and we all returned to Reidsville High, which we had grown to love and respect, to renew old friendships and make new acquaintances. We found fun and frolic at the Junior-Senior, Hi-Y, and Athletic Banquets. The Hi-Y Club's members were often seen in the halls in dresses and pajamas. Our Dramatic Club, under the splendid leadership of Mr. Leggette, and our debating team, under the leadership of Miss Bane and Mr. Leggette, had a most successful year. As our third year of High School drew to a close, we looked eagerly forward to being Seniors the next year but all our hopes were shadowed when we learned of the addition of a twelfth grade.

We entered school in the fall of 1936 bewildered as to our rank but soon forgot all this when Mrs. Kushner led us into the study of English Poetry and Mr. Kuykendall into Geography and Arithmetic. Our class was joined this year by Julia Carter, who came here from Bethany, Willard Lane Alcorn, who came from Wentworth, and Pete Wallenborn, who came from Salisbury. We finally reached the end of the year and looked forward to being real Seniors the next year.

Our Senior year has been a most successful one under the splendid leadership of Miss Ratledge and Miss Baker. One of the outstanding things of the year was our football team's winning the Class B State Championship and then taking a trip to Fredericksburg, Va., and Washington, D. C. We formed the Perrylips Literary Society, which has proved to be most successful under the leadership of Miss Ratledge. We were unfortunate in losing one of our classmates, Lacy Brame, in January when he left us to enter Duke University, but were fortunate to have Catherine Bendall, from John Marshall High School, Richmond, Va., join our class this year. Student Government was inaugurated this year with Pete Wallenborn as the first president. This organization has so far proved itself worthy and we hope it shall continue to do so in the future life of our school.

Pam Oliver, a classmate, was awarded the silver cup as the winner of the Beauty Contest sponsored by the Hi-Y Club this year.

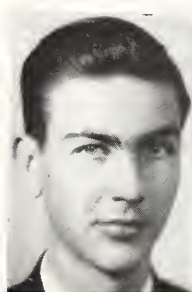

Our Dramatic Club this year entered the district contest, competing with Concord, Gastonia, Winston-Salem, and Albemarle, but were defeated by Concord and Winston-Salem. Those taking part in the play, "The Sisters' Tragedy," were Betsy Lee Mayberry, Lucy Kiker, Jett Osborn, Claude George, and Steve Siddle.

A baseball team was organized this year to add to the athletic activities of the school.

And now, as we are about to bring to an end the twelve years of which we are to be proudest in after life—

*Let every one in Thirty-Eight cry,
God bless our class and Reidsville Hi!*

Historian.

PROPHECY

FOR THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1938

The orchestra was softly playing "Stardust," as I dozed off to sleep. There seemed to be stars everywhere, small ones, and large ones. There were only a few very large ones, but there were five that were twinkling, and these attracted my attention.

As I gazed at one of the stars more closely, I saw to my amazement that it was showing a scene, and as this drew my whole attention, I saw that it was a Night Club, The New Tobacco Club, which was recently built on the outskirts of Reidsville. My, do my ears deceive me or is it really Benny Goodman? Oh, I can see better now—No, it's not Benny Goodman, but it is Pam Oliver and her red hot clarinet. Pam has an all girl orchestra playing at the Club. She is better known as the "Queen of Swing." Pam also draws the largest crowd in the South. All the tired business men come here to relax, and listen to the red hot music. At one of the front tables I notice Stephen Siddle, who has recently been made President of the Siddle Tobacco Co. I see that Stephen has a guest tonight—why it's none other than little D. C. Burton. He is the traveling salesman for the company. D. C. turned out to be the little man about town of Reidsville.

The star twinkles a little and I notice a smaller star to the right of the first star. Why it's a part of the big star. The scene is in Stephen's private office, where I see his private secretary, Margaret Carroll, reading the details for Jane Montgomery's program. Jane is singing for the Siddle hour on the air. In the office with Margaret is Catherine Bendall, who is Jane's business manager. It's all she can do to keep a record of the phone calls that Jane gets from Bobby Gapen alone.

The star twinkles out and another takes its place. Ah, it's a picture of Marion Rascoe, the Movie Queen, whose latest picture is "Yours For The Asking." What's that funny sign at the bottom of the picture? No wonder I didn't know what it was—it's signed "Bob Gapen, Jr." That means that this very modern building is Bobby's Studio. Someone is coming out of the door of Bob's office. Why, it's Dr. William Fetzer. Bill tells me that Bobby has just taken his picture for the papers because he has been appointed State Health Officer. I mention the fact that Marion's dress is pretty and he tells me that Catherine Baynes, the noted Dress Designer, makes all the dresses that Marion wears.

Another star twinkles and takes the old one's place. The scene now is in the Burton warehouse, owned and managed by none other than Frank Burton. Frank recently bought the warehouse from Raymond Wagoner, who has accepted a position with the Siddle Tobacco Program on the air. Raymond talks like an auctioneer over the air, and gives the auctioneer's opinion of good tobacco. With Frank and Raymond I see Cicero Hill, a noted farmer, who has invented a new watermelon which has a thick rine. He did this so his wife, Dorothy Van Hook, could can to her heart's content in the summer. Ah, I see a visitor coming. Why it's Ruth Butler, President of the State 4-H Clubs. She wants Cicero to tell her 4-H Clubs how he invented the watermelon with the thick rine.

The scene changes to another star and here I see the Chaney School for Girls, of which Hallie Chaney is President. Down the hall I see that Julia Carter is teaching General Business. Across the hall I see that Birdell Piner, the Home Economics teacher, is having Martha Baker, the dress designer, tell the girls about the trip she has just made to Paris, during which she studied the new styles. When I go back up to the office, Hallie tells me that two big business women, Anne E. Johnson and Willard Alcorn, are planning to finance a boys' school across the street.

The twinkle of the stars becomes very faint because the dawn is near. At last I see the last picture. It's Nurse Avra Sacrinty telling Dr. Paul Thompson that her brother, Coach John Sacrinty, is only bruised up a bit. While coaching one afternoon, John tried to show the boys how he used to carry the ball in high school, and then the boys ganged up on him, and sent him to the hospital. Out in the chemistry laboratory I see Dr. Peter Wallenborn trying to fill out a formula. He doesn't succeed, however, because technician Penelope Donovan is telling him how beautiful his hair is. She does this so she can see Peter blush.

Now as the gray of the dawn appears, the stars disappear and the light of the morning comes upon us.

JOHN WALTERS,

Prophet.

16. Julia Carter wills her spontaneous laughter to Malcolm Moricle.
17. Margaret Carroll leaves her class spirit to Betsy Lee Mayberry.
18. Pam Oliver's "line" used in stringing innocent young boys is left to Helen McCollum and Lois Simon to improve their technique.
19. The indifference of Pearl Somers and Birdell Piner is left to Edna Smith.
20. We leave D. C. Burton's "way with the girls" to "Chuck" Reynolds.
21. Catherine Bendall leaves one of her diplomas to Syble Ellington. Syble won't need it because she will have a little "gray" piece of paper of her own.
22. Fred Stallings leaves his efficiency as Secretary to the Principal to Frances Lee Faucette.
23. Raymond Wagoner leaves his acting ability to Mac MacMillan.

We appoint as executrix of this will Miss Mary Jane Baker, and do set our hand and seal on this thirty-first day of May in 1938.

PARTING

After we go away, our school days here
Will be as a monument whence soul has fled.
I stand and consider you now, so near;
The halls are empty and all joy seems dead.

Each way I turn my sad, tear-blinded gaze,
I find some friend whose parting brings me grief;
Some other reminder of high school days
We passed together beautiful as brief.

All knowledge that I possess, I know
Because of you; and when I go away
Those hours shall become an idea as so
To make me live in a more inspiring way.

I think I feel as one who knew
That he had parted with some dear friend;
For twelve long years, I gave my life to you;
But there's a new plan when this all ends.

MARTHA BAKER.

ATHLETICS

RENOCAHI

Mr. Perry has again a championship football team. He has been quite successful as a football coach, turning out four State Championship teams in '30, '31, '32, and '37, a Western Champion team in '34, and another undefeated team in '36. His boys' basketball team has not received quite so many honors, but has completed a successful season.

Mr. Holmes is a new unit in the coaching staff of R. H. S. His girls' basketball team had a most successful season, being runner-up in the county tournament. A tennis club has also been organized, with Mr. Holmes as coach. The boys are to play intrascholastic and the girls, intramural tennis. We welcome Mr. J. L. Holmes to R. H. S.

Mr. Wingfield, "Coach George," as he is known to the boys, has again proved to be a big help to the athletic department. In the last two years he has helped Mr. Perry to build two of the most successful football teams in the history of Reidsville High School. Mr. Wingfield is also baseball coach.
